Do you love your mom characters. My mom is a character 3 full movie.

1 of 40 Turning Red (2022) For something the whole family can enjoy, Turning Red is ostensibly about a teenager who turns into a giant red panda every time she experiences strong emotions. But deep down, it's also about the relationships between mothers and daughters, and how they bring about those emotions.STREAM NOWRELATED: Pixar Easter Eggs That Probably Went Straight Over Your Head 2 of 40 After Yang (2022) Can an artificial being truly become a part of a family? And what is a family, anyway? The quiet, contemplative After Yang grapples with these questions as it follows a family whose artificial "big brother" for their only daughter goes unresponsive.STREAM NOWRELATED: The Best Movies Coming Out in 2022 3 of 40 The Lost Daughter (2021) Based on a novel by Elana Ferrante, The Lost Daughter tells the story of Leda Caruso, a middle-aged academic off on a solo vacation. When she meets a young mom and her family on the beach, she's confronted with her own ambivalence toward motherhood. The film earned three Academy Award nominations, including nods for Best Actress (Olivia Colman for her portrayal of Leda), Best Supporting Actress (Jessie Buckley as young Leda) and Best Adapted Screenplay (Maggie Gyllenhaal, who also directed).STREAM NOW 4 of 40 Belfast (2021) Outlander's Caitriona Balfe positively sparkles as the mom in this movie about a family trying to maintain some sort of normal life as their neighborhood around them is rocked by political violence. (Bonus if your mom loves Van Morrison — there's a lot of him on the soundtrack.)STREAM NOW 5 of 40 Barb and Star Go to Vista Del Mar (2021) For moms who like to laugh — and who doesn't? — this ultra-silly comedy from Bridesmaids writers Kristen Wiig and Annie Mumolo is just the movie she needs in her life. Barb and Star aren't moms per se, but they have EME (Extreme Mom Energy). And who plays their unexpected love interest? It's Belfast's Jamie Dornan!STREAM NOW 6 of 40 Spencer (2021) If your mom digs memoirs or biographies, she'd love this impressionistic tale of one of the most famous mothers in recent memory: Princess Diana. It takes place over the course of one Christmas, and you can see how Diana feels about her place within the Royal Family, and how her biggest salvation is her relationship to her kids.STREAM NOW RELATED: A Look Back at Princess Diana's Life in Photos 7 of 40 Queenpins (2021) Think of it as Hustlers with much lower stakes: When former Olympic athlete Connie (Kristen Bell) finds her extreme couponing isn't getting her anywhere, she teams up with JoJo (Kirby Howell-Baptiste), a friend and deal-influencer, to start counterfeiting the coupons themselves. What happens next has to be seen to be believed — but it's based on a true story! It's great for fans of real-life scammer stories (you know who you are).STREAM NOW 8 of 40 C'mon C'mon (2021) Mostly, this film is about the little-explored uncle-nephew dynamic, following a childless man (played by Joaquin Phoenix) who has to take care of his nephew Jesse (Woody Norman) while his mother is off taking care of another family member. But Gabby Hoffman plays such an Earthy mom, and Jesse feels like a real kid and not a Hollywood kid, that Mom is sure to get the feels.STREAM NOW 10 of 40 Tully (2018) Tully is a warts-and-all look at motherhood, with Charlize Theron playing an exhausted mother of two (with one on the way). When she hires a "night nanny" to help with the childcare, she starts to reconcile the woman she's become with who she was before with children. STREAM NOW 11 of 40 Dumplin' (2018) For moms and kids whose expectations for each other don't exactly line up, there's this feel-good Netflix movie, about a young girl who, because of her former-boss queen mom, decides to enter a pageant despite not looking the part, opening the door for other outsiders. STREAM NOW 12 of 40 Lady Bird (2017) Lady Bird, about a high school senior growing up in Sacramento, is the type of movie that makes you want to call your mother and apologize for all of the stupid things you did when you were a rebellious teen. For her performance as a beleaguered mom, Laurie Metcalf received a Best Supporting Actress nomination.STREAM ON AMAZON STREAM ON NETFLIX 13 of 40 Bad Moms (2016) Watching this on Mother's Day is a win/win: If you have a great mom, you can talk about how good she looks by comparison, and if you had a "bad" mom, you can laugh with recognition. (But even the "bad moms," as this movie shows, can be pretty wonderful).STREAM NOW 14 of 40 Fences (2016) Warning, this August Wilson adaptation isn't a feel-good mom flick. But if you want to see a mom knock it out of the park, acting-wise, there's no better than Viola Davis, who won an Academy Award for her role as the long-suffering Rose.STREAM NOW 15 of 40 The Babadook (2014) If your mom has nerves of steel, show her this horror flick, which proves the lengths that moms will go to in order to protect their kids. In this case, one mom has to go up against a haunting — but sharply dressed — paranormal creature who's after her son.STREAM NOW 17 of 40 The Kids Are All Right (2010) The Kids Are All Right looks at the various ways we're defined by our families: It's about a brother and a sister, raised by two moms, whose suburban tranquility is disrupted when they track down their "donor dad" and invite him into their lives. Mostly, though, it's fun to think about how awesome it would be if Annette Bening and Julianne Moore were your moms IRL.STREAM NOW 18 of 40 Mother (2009) Not to be confused with the Jennifer Lawrence movie of the same name, this foreign thriller is about a mother who becomes an investigator when her son is accused of a crime, and she turns desperate in her quest to clear his name. It comes from the mind of Bong Joon-Ho, who directed the award-winning Parasite.STREAM ON AMAZON STREAM ON HULU 19 of 40 Mamma Mia! (2008) A strong mother/daughter relationship, a meditation on motherhood, a Greek isle and the music of ABBA — Mamma Mia! has all of the makings of a classic girl's night. Make it a double feature with the sequel, Mamma Mia! Here We Go Again.STREAM NOW 20 of 40 Akeelah and the Bee (2006) This is a feel-good story about Akeelah Anderson and her dream, aided by her mother, to compete in the National Spelling Bee. It's a good one for all the supportive moms out there. STREAM NOW 21 of 40 What Lies Beneath (2000) Pulpy thriller fans and empty-nesters, this one's for you: It follows Claire (Michelle Pfeiffer) and Norman (Harrison Ford) as a couple whose daughter has recently left for college. When Claire starts to experience strange things in her lakeside house, she has to figure out if something sinister is going on, or if she's just unused to being alone all day.STREAM NOW 22 of 40 Stepmom (1998) If you're looking to bond over a good cry, this weepy '90s flick, where a young stepmother tries to win over her new family, will definitely do the trick. Bring lots of tissues.STREAM ON AMAZON STREAM ON NETFLIX 23 of 40 Soul Food (1997) 24 of 40 Fargo (1996) If you want to talk about one of the toughest movie moms (or moms-to-be) out there, you have to mention Marge Gunderson from Fargo. She single-handedly takes on a criminal investigation, all while extremely pregnant.STREAM NOW 25 of 40 Little Women (1994) Little Women has been made into a movie loads of times —you can see adaptations from 2019, 2018, 1994 and 1933, among others — and there's something to recommend about all of them. This one features Winona Ryder as the spunky Jo, and Susan Sarandon as the central matriarch. STREAM ON AMAZON STREAM ON NETFLIX 26 of 40 Serial Mom (1994) Or, if your mom is a little on the irreverent side, show her John Waters' send-up of suburban moms. The campy dark comedy follows Beverly Sutphin (Kathleen Turner), a buttoned-up mom on a crusade to get everyone in her neighborhood to adhere to her rules of etiquette — no matter what.STREAM NOW 27 of 40 The Joy Luck Club (1993) Based on the bestselling novel by Amy Tan, this movie focuses on relationships between young Chinese-American women and their immigrant mothers, making them navigate both an age and a cultural divide.STREAM NOW 28 of 40 Steel Magnolias (1989) Steel Magnolias is one of those quintessential comfort movies. Centered on a group of strong, female friends living in Louisiana, it makes you want to surround yourself with the women you love.STREAM NOW 29 of 40 Mermaids (1989) Talk about a powerhouse trio of actresses: Cher, Winona Ryder and Christina Ricci all play a family trying to keep it together in a movie that shows how sometimes it can be a blessing to have an unconventional mom. (Who else can relate?)STREAM NOW 30 of 40 Aliens (1986) It's rare that moms get to be action heroes, but Aliens' Ripley shows that you can care for a kiddo and kick butt at the same time. If your mom is looking for something adrenaline-fueled, it's the perfect choice.STREAM NOW Go to the contentGo to the footerMothers should be celebrated every day of the year, not just on Mother's Day (although, don't get us wrong, spoiling your mom on Mother's Day is highly encouraged). And when compiling this list of the most classic movie mothers of all time, we learned one thing quickly: Upsetting mommie dearest is not advised. While some mothers are the type to get a bit annoyed that you don't call enough or, if you still live at home, that you leave dirty washing all over your bedroom floor, others – as this list demonstrates – can be downright homicidal and even possessed by demons. With that in mind, please excuse us if this list skews toward the monstrous. While you'll find plenty of honest-to-goodness nurturers on the countdown, there are some horrors in there too. What can we say? We love our crazy matriarchs as much as the calming ones. Here are our picks of the most classic movie mothers of all time. Kenji Mizoguchi's feudal tragedy is, to many, the most emotionally ruinous movie ever made. It begins in catastrophe with a family torn apart, the father exiled and, sometime later, the mother, Tamaki (Kinuyo Tanaka), carried off, her two children sold into slavery. The plot then becomes a survival story, as hope yields to more practical modes of getting by, like forgetting and brutality. But as years pass, there is word of Tamaki's legend and a daring quest begins. We'll say no more, except to note Mizoguchi's unerring instinct for depicting strong (if compromised) women. The time we have with our mothers may be cut short, but, as this film shows, they mark us forever.—Joshua RothkopfWe live in the Golden Age of Streep, in which film after film, America's most accomplished actor seems unable to hit a false note. But hard as it is to fathom, there was a time when Meryl had to prove herself, and even after supplying sharp supporting work in late-'70s triumphs like The Deer Hunter, Manhattan and Kramer vs. Kramer, there was still a mountain for her to climb. Sophie Choice was that breakthrough, the elusive peak attained. Most of the film takes place in a Brooklyn boardinghouse, where the title character (Streep), a Polish Holocaust survivor; her manic lover (Kevin Kline); and their neighbor, a young writer (Peter MacNicol), come to a kind of familiarity. Slowly, the movie begins to probe the cracks of their intimacy, and a secret tears the trio apart. Sophie's choice, as we learn in a powerhouse climax, is no choice at all—it's the apocalypse to any parent. Essentially, we bear witness.—Joshua RothkopfShow moreBy entering your email address you agree to our Terms of Use and Privacy Policy and consent to receive emails from Time Out about news, events, offers and partner promotions.
