Along the Mississippi River

If three people buy the same laptop computer and same phone (from the same store at the same time), the total cost for the three people can be represented in two different ways. Since the total cost is unique, the two representations must be equal.

$$\text{Total Cost} = \text{Cost of 3 laptops} + \text{Cost of 3 phones}$$

Total Cost = 1 (Cost of a Laptop) + Cost of a printer)

This idea can be applied to algebraic expressions. Recall that multiplication can be thought of as repeated addition, so $5(x + 1)$ means there are five groups of $(x + 1)$. So, there are five x 's and five 1 's, so all together, there is $5x + 5$. This is represented below.

^aWitcher, Cooper's school, 1990s curriculum, 10 different party positions.

Do you notice a pattern? In each case, you end up with the products of the “outside” number with each of the “inside” numbers. This pattern is called the distributive property and it can be expressed with the following rule:

$$\mathbf{a}(\mathbf{b} + \mathbf{c}) = \mathbf{a}\mathbf{b} + \mathbf{a}\mathbf{c}$$

with $\alpha = 0.05$ and $\beta = 0.80$

Sometimes it's helpful to draw arrows from the outside factor to the inside factor like this

$$7(p+q) + 4 = 7p + 7q + 4$$

$$8(2n + 1) = -4n + 4(10)$$
$$n = 1.66 = 24$$

either you prefer a growth-minded approach or help students see their progress with standard-based learning, it has the power to help students develop their trust and enter the date of testing with an attitude positive. Fortunately, you already have an important idea of the skills that will be tested because the TNReady website contains structural content and examples of the type of content that your students should address. Once you download the PDF standards for your topic, you will see the standards organized by grade. If you want to try the paper-based version of the test, all you need is the ability to view or print PDF files. These practical tests are an instruction tool for teachers to help students become familiar with the types of questions that can be made on the map. For example, students in grades 3-4 that are taking the ELA test can expect to see the multiple option, two piece questions (Part A and Part B), select Multiple, write requests, editing tasks, questions Listening and 5a or not (types of questions effectively true or false). Only once students feel civilian maneuvering through the online environment, they can really begin to convert most of their focus on content and what each question is asked. TNReady can feel like a big problem. The TNReady website provides the general description of the test structure for each grade and subject. This allows the teacher to connect content lessons in learning areas that will be more effective. The TNReady website establishes improved elements in technology (TEIS) that students can expect to see in the test.
