According to your bird daily, using the same words and intonation, can encourage your bird to mimic words. Cockatiels are small, crested members of the parrot family. Melospittacus undulatus. Developed with and approved by a qualified veterinarian. A parakeet's nails typically need to be trimmed every few weeks to months and should be trimmed with small nail clippers by a trained professional so that the bird does not get injured. How can you teach a parakeet to talk? Learn how to take care of Conures, recommended diet and housing setup. UV light is filtered out by glass in windows, so placing the habitat near a window is not sufficient. By speaking softly to and gently handling a parakeet daily, as well as rewarding them with their favorite food and treats for stepping on to your hand, you can socialize a parakeet and create a bond over time. How can you tell the age of a parakeet? A habitat approximately 18" x 18" D x 18" H, with metal bars spaced no greater than 1 1/2" apart, is the minimum size of habitat for one parakeet. Building your habitat Parakeets acclimate well to average household temperatures, not to drop below 65°F or to exceed 80°F; be cautious of extreme temperature changes. Green Cheek Conures are highly inquisitive, bold, and engaging birds. The black lines of feathers (or "bars") across the tops of their head extend all the way down to the base of their beak. Parakeets are very intelligent and can learn a great deal from their human family. In fact, hundreds of thousands, budgies have become one of the most popular pet birds. They can become good mimics, and with practice, they can learn to speak numerous words. Replace substrate or habitat liner at minimum weekly or more often as needed, especially if the habitat houses more than one bird. Find the right food, supplies and equipment for your neighborhood Petco. Parakeets can live 10-12 years with proper care. How do you bathe a parakeet? Different types of birds should not be housed together. Health Signs of a healthy parakeet Active, alert and sociable Eats, drinks and passes stool throughout the day Dry nares and bright, dry eyes Supple skin on feet and legs and smooth beak Clean, dry vent Smooth, well-groomed feathers Red flags (contact your veterinarian if you notice these signs) Fluffed, plucked or soiled feathers Sitting on habitat floor for an extended period of time Wheezing, sneezing or coughing Open-mouthed or labored breathing and/or tail bobbing Regurgitation or vomiting Runny, bloody or discolored stools or no stool production Straining to pass droppings Favoring one foot when not sleeping Eye or nasal discharge Red or swollen eyes Crusty skin around face and feet Persistently closed eyes or sleeping during the day Loss of appetite Health Issue Symptoms or Causes Suggested Action Health Issue Chlamydiosis (psittacosis or parrot fever) Symptoms or Causes Appetite loss, fluffed feathers, nasal discharge, respiratory difficulty and conjunctivitis Suggested Action Seek immediate avian veterinary attention Health Issue Diarrhea Symptoms or Causes Fecal material of white urine (porets or clear liquid urine) is not formed; has multiple causes from diet change to bacterial or viral infection Internal parasites Suggested Action Consult an avian veterinarian and ensure proper diet Health Issue Feather plucking Symptoms or Causes Bird plucks own feathers; may be due to boredom, stress, pain or other underlying illnesses Suggested Action Consult your veterinarian for a diagnosis and treatment Health Issue Feather loss Symptoms or Causes Feather loss around eyes, beak, legs and feet Suggested Action Consult your veterinarian to determine if the bird is plucking itself or if the feathers are being pulled out by another bird Health Issue Infection Symptoms or Causes Infection Symptoms or Causes Cannot be properly disinfected How can you tell a parakeet's gender? Gray is the most common color, but also available in fancy, lutino, and pied color variations. UV lights designed specifically for birds should shine on the habitat 10-12 hours/day and be changed every 6 months, as their potency wanes Appropriately Sized Habitat Bedding Perches Toys Spot clean the habitat daily, removing discarded food and droppings on perches. Be sure to routinely rotate toys to help prevent boredom Lighting: Birds need exposure to ultraviolet (UV) light to make vitamin D in their skin, which then enables them to absorb dietary calcium. Parakeets learn to mimic words when they hear them over and over in the same tone. Call your local location ahead of time to ensure availability. Habitat mates Parakeets can be kept alone to bond with their pet parent or in pairs or larger groups to bond with each other. Avoid high-salt and high-fat treats. Things to remember when feeding your parakeet: Fresh food and water should always be available Vegetables and fruits not eaten within a few hours should be discarded Treats should not exceed 10% of total food intake Although birds are social and like to eat when their habitat mates eat, never share food from your plate or your mouth—people have microorganisms in their mouths that can cause illness in birds Since parakeets remove the hulls from seeds before eating them, they do not need to be fed grit to grind up food in their stomachs Waterers & Feeders Food trays Millet Parakeet care Bird pet parents should avoid nontoxic cookware and appliances with nontoxic coatings, as these items can release colorless, odorless fumes when heated that can kill birds if they are inhaled or ingested If you have a parakeet, you should consider having a bird proof your home to protect your bird from household hazards and to protect your home from your bird's mischief If you have a parakeet, you should consider having a bird proof your home to protect your bird from household hazards and to protect your home from your bird's mischief To maintain a good condition with daily use Clipping the outermost five flight feathers, when done correctly, can help prevent injury or escape; consult an avian veterinarian on what is best for your bird Where to buy a parakeet Petco sells parakeets in stores Ensure there are no habitat parts or toys with lead, zinc, other potentially toxic heavy metals or lead-based paints or galvanized parts, as these can cause serious medical issues if birds ingest them Perches: Perches should be at least 4" long and 3/8" in diameter; a variety of perch diameters is required to exercise your bird's feet and help prevent pressure sores from developing on their soles. Ask a Pet Care Center associate about Petco's selection of products available for the care and happiness of your new pet. Thoroughly wash and dry food bowls daily Parakeets who don't bathe regularly can be misted gently a few times a week with warm water from a plant mister to help maintain healthy plumage. How do you trim parakeet nails? All products carry a 100% money-back guarantee. Because all birds are potential carriers of infectious diseases, such as chlamydiosis (also called psittacosis or parrot fever), always wash your hands before and after handling your bird or habitat contents to help prevent the potential spread of disease. Pregnant women, children under the age of 5, senior citizens and people with weakened immune systems should consult their physicians before purchasing or caring for birds and should consider having a pet other than a bird. Go to cdc.gov/healthypets for more information about birds and disease. Note: The information in this care sheet is not a substitute for veterinary care. Regularly clean and disinfect your pet's habitat and perches by: Moving your bird into a secure place (such as another habitat or travel carrier) in a separate air space Washing the habitat, perches and toys with a bird habitat cleaner or 3% bleach and water solution, ensuring that all trace amounts of habitat cleaner or bleach are washed off and there is no residue to which your bird could be exposed Drying the habitat, perches and toys thoroughly before your bird returns to the habitat If you have a parakeet, you should consider having a bird proof your home to protect your bird from household hazards and to protect your home from your bird's mischief If you have a parakeet, you should consider having a bird proof your home to protect your bird from household hazards and to protect your home from your bird's mischief Product orders, return bird to habitat Replace perches, dishes and toys when worn or damaged; rotate new toys into the habitat regularly to alleviate boredom. A well-balanced parakeet diet consists of: Do not feed birds avocados, fruit seeds, chocolate, caffeine or alcohol, as these are toxic and can cause illness and death in birds if consumed. The habitat should be placed off the floor in a well-lit area away from drafts and out of reach of any other pets. Water dishes should be large enough for parakeets to bathe in. They are known for their mellow nature. By about 10 months of age, males and females can be differentiated by the color of the skin around their nostrils, called the cere, which is blue in males and brownish pink in females. How do you tame a parakeet? If you need additional information, please contact your veterinarian as appropriate. Parakeets are social, friendly birds who can easily be hand-tamed They recognize and are very responsive to their caretakers Small-bodied with long, slender tails, they are generally docile and easy to handle While native parakeets are green, domesticated bred budgies may be yellow, blue, white, gray or combinations of these colors The name "parakeet" means "songbird with wavy lines," referring to the wavy-looking black lines of feathers that cover their heads and bodies The black lines of feathers (or "bars") across the tops of their heads extend all the way down to the tops of their beaks when they are born and recede as they age; these bars are slowly replaced by solid-colored feathering on their heads by 3-4 months of age, after their first molt By about 10 months of age, male and female parakeets can be differentiated by the color of the skin around their nostrils, called the cere, which is blue in males and brownish pink in females Parakeets make a variety of sounds, including chirps, clicks, whistles, whines and whirs Parakeets can be kept alone to bond with their pet parent or in pairs or larger groups to bond with each other; different types of birds should not be housed together Provide the largest habitat possible for your parakeet.
