Fonological and phonemic awareness activities help children in preschool age to build a basis for the development of early reading skills. The words of three letters (sometimes short or small words) are ideal for children in preschool ages that are ready to practice the sound of simple vocabulary. The words consonanti-vocali-consonanti (CVC) are usually better for this purpose. However, schooled children can also develop sight reading capacity while learning to recognize small words that could be more difficult to doze. The appropriate flash cards in the Eta provided here include three words of letters, with photos to help in the recognition of a child's subject. They include animals and other words in preschool to strengthen basic skills. These cards can also be used to teach letters to children in preschool ages that are still learning the alphabet. The words presented here include words for letters A-Z, starting from each letter of the alphabet. Of course, small words starting with q for children still learning the alphabet are difficult to find, so the only exceptions are QEX letters (Ä € ä,~ ä "quentÄ € ä,~ and Ä € ä,~ ä" x-RayÄ € ä,~).
